

5 Tools for Gamifying Team Productivity

This is an extra resource to go along with the original article:

Could You Gamify Productivity in Your Business?

These apps have been designed with gamifying productivity in mind. What ones might work for your team?

#1. Red Critter Tracker

This is an agile project management app with a difference. Red Critter Tracker has a system of badges and rewards which are prominently displayed on the user profile once they earn them. Companies can also opt to use the “reward store”, where employees can save up their points and trade for rewards.

Badges

There are fifty unique badges that can be unlocked by your company. Some badges can be held by only 1 person at a time, others can be held by many people.

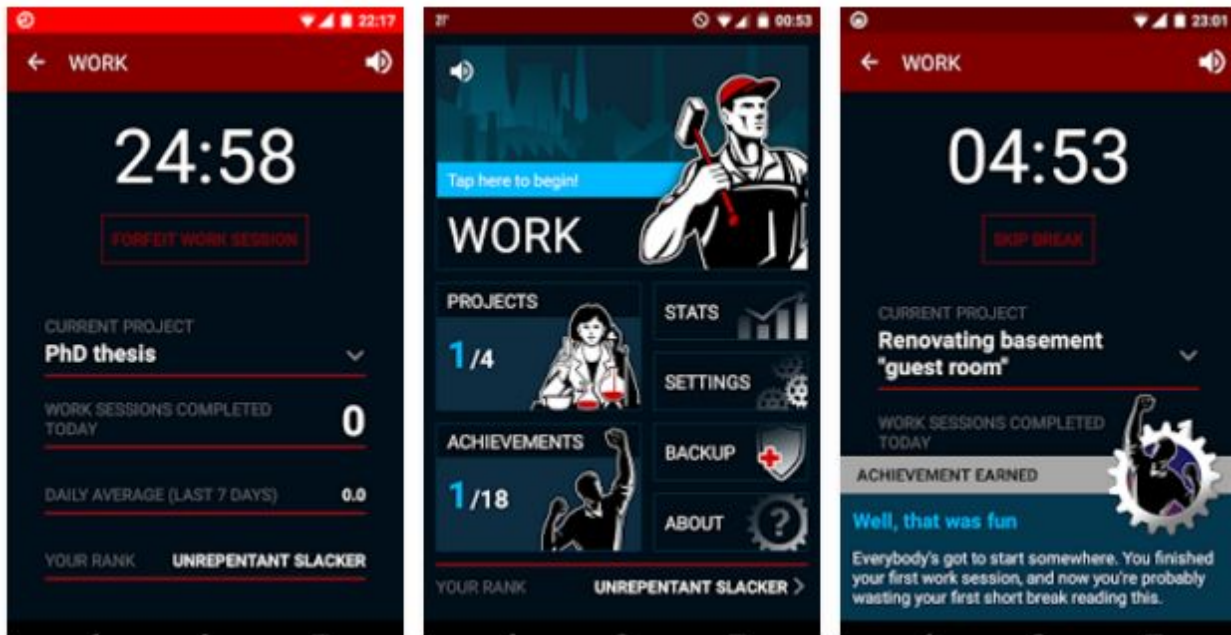

Rewards

Complete important project goals to earn Reward Points. Spend your points on special offers in your company's Rewards Store. Rewards can be anything from gift cards to lunches with executives.

#2. Productivity Challenge Timer

This app works using the Pomodoro Technique for breaking work into timed sprints. The gamification comes in with the analytics it has available. It will grade you on your productivity and assign you a title (for example, “0 - Unrepentant Slacker”).

#3. Habitica

Turn tasks and to-do lists into quests! Habitica rewards your “good” behaviors by leveling you up or giving an award, but it also punishes any slacking through decreasing the health of your avatar or punishing the entire team (gulp).

Motivate yourself to do anything.

#4. Map My Run

Health and wellness is important for all of your team members. Why not turn it into a team challenge? Map My Run can help by allowing you to set up your own challenges or join any of the many they have available each month. There is a proven link between exercise, health and productivity.
